RE: Offenses by Public Officers and Employees (“The Little Hatch Act”)
Use of State-Owned Property for Campaign Advertising or Activities

With the campaign season moving toward the election, the Office of University Counsel submits this reminder for distribution to the university’s faculty and staff.

Generally speaking, the Little Hatch Act prohibits state employees from displaying political campaign materials on state property. Tenn. Code Ann. § 2-19-206.

For our purposes, the Act prohibits ETSU faculty and staff from displaying campaign materials while they are on campus. Campaign materials include campaign literature, banners, placards, streamers, stickers, signs, or other items of campaign or political advertising, including lapel buttons or stickers, hats, t-shirts, or other items advocating for or against a particular candidate, party, committee, or agency. For our purpose, the prohibition extends to all state property, including our main campus and satellite campuses and the land, parking lots, walkways, buildings, facilities, equipment, and state vehicles. The Act also prohibits ETSU employees from using ETSU’s email system to display campaign materials or to send message in support of or against any particular candidate or party.

However, the Act does not prohibit ETSU employees from displaying campaign decals or bumper stickers on the employee’s personal vehicle while it is parked on campus.

The Act does not apply to students and visitors.

Our buildings and facilities may be used for campaign meetings or preparation of campaign activity in support of or against any particular candidate or party if we provide a reasonably equal opportunity for presentation of all sides or views or if we provide reasonably equal access to the buildings and facilities to all sides.

The Little Hatch Act prohibits ETSU faculty and staff from actively engaging in a political campaign on behalf of any party, committee, organization, agency or candidate during work hours. Tenn. Code Ann. § 2-19-207. The Act prohibits faculty and staff from attending political meetings or rallies during work hours. Id. Finally, the Act prohibits faculty and staff from using the employee’s official position or employment for political purposes. Id.

For additional guidance, I have attached the sections of the Little Hatch Act to this memorandum.

Please refer the faculty and staff to the Office of University Counsel for answers to any questions.
