Weekly Update for Faculty & Staff | December 21, 2020

Latest issue of Illuminated available

The School of Graduate Studies is proud to present Illuminated, a magazine that focuses on graduate student research at ETSU. Additionally, it provides profiles of students who recently graduated. Click here to access the magazine.

This issue features work by graduate students and their academic advisors from the following departments: Psychology, Computer Science, Early Childhood Education, Audiology, Studio Art, Educational Leadership, and History. Illuminated is edited by Karin Bartoszuk, Ph.D. and includes the work of a talented ETSU graduate student, Hannah Warren (Sport Science and Coach Education) who conducted and wrote the interviews; and Emily Redd (School of Graduate Studies) who designed the graphics and layout.

D2L Sign-in changes

Information Technology Services (ITS) is performing maintenance on D2L today, Monday, Dec. 21, 2020 to improve platform security and sign-in experience

Continue to use elearn.etsu.edu to log in, but this update will provide a new look for the sign-in page and the experience will be similar to that of logging into Webmail or Zoom from your computer's internet browser.

If you have any questions or require assistance, please contact the ITS Help Desk at 423-439-4648, itshelp@etsu.edu, or visit etsu.edu/helpdesk.

Zoom recording storage changes

Beginning today, Monday, Dec. 21, Information Technology Services (ITS) will be turning on Panopto's integration with Zoom.

This integration will provide additional opportunities for file retention, editing, and detailed analytics. All meetings and webinars that are recorded with Zoom will be automatically added to your Panopto library, checked for accuracy and validity, and then removed from Zoom. This allows the institution to save money in terms of paying for Zoom recording storage without Zoom users losing access to their files.

Please review the help document and Frequently Asked Questions for additional information.

If you have any questions or require assistance, please contact ITS's division of Academic Technology Services at 423-439-8611 or

Institute on Trauma-Informed Strategies for Teaching and Learning Jan. 10-11

The Women's Studies Program will host a two-day institute about infusing trauma-informed care principles into strategies for teaching and learning.

Dr. Phyllis Thompson, director of the Women's Studies Program and associate professor in the Department of Literature and Language, is co-organizing the institute with members of the Women's Studies Steering Committee. The project, "Trauma-Informed Strategies for Teaching and Learning: Creating a Culture of Belonging, Fostering Retention, and Increasing Degree Completion," was one of 7 funded projects funded by ETSU's Instructional Development Committee.

The two-day institute will kick-off on the evening of Sunday, January 10 from 4 p.m.-5:30 p.m. and will be followed by a full day of sessions on Monday, January 11 from 9 a.m.-4 p.m. The events are free to attend. Click here to register.

The event draws on evidence-based approaches and model best practices, and is geared to the specific needs of ETSU, the local community, and region. First, participants will have a two-hour interactive evening session to explore questions about their interest in trauma-informed care (TIC) and how they can contribute to the conversation about TIC in higher education and the community. At the day-long institute, participants can take part in interactive workshops to learn the language of trauma-informed care, practice scenarios to better understand core principles, enhance course materials, develop strategies to recognize and respond to toxic stress, and create an action plan.

This timely opportunity offers critical insights and brings fresh perspectives to faculty preparing course assignments and administrators writing policy and developing programming for spring semester. Furthermore, with recent spikes in and effects of the COVID-19 pandemic, the need for a trauma-informed faculty and staff is more urgent than ever.

"Reading Through the Pandemic" program

Students who need books about language and culture for their spring 2021 courses but who need financial assistance may take advantage of a new program called "Reading Through the Pandemic" offered by ETSU's Language and Culture Resource Center (LCRC).

Through this program, students can apply for assistance in covering the cost of books about language and culture that are required by course syllabi, or other such books that will help them succeed in their courses. To request books not specifically listed on syllabi, students must obtain letters from their instructors explaining how the desired books would help them.

After using the books purchased in the “Reading Through the Pandemic” program, students may turn the books in to the LCRC to be made available for other students to use in the future for classes or research through a specialized library established with the materials. Or, they may elect to keep the books.

Click here to read more, and to apply, contact the LCRC at 423-439-8342 or lcrc@etsu.edu.

2021 Appalachian Student Research Forum \(ASRF\) is going virtual

The ASRF is a regional competition in which participants from universities and colleges across the Southern Appalachian region present their original research in a formal, juried setting. Dual enrollment, undergraduate, graduate and medical students, as well as post-doctoral fellows and medical residents are eligible to participate.

Unlike past years' forums, ASRF 2021 will take place completely online utilizing the Digital Commons platform. Presenters will record and upload their presentations after registration opens in February 2021 for viewing and judging after registration closes in March 2021 (actual dates to be determined).

As it becomes available, additional information on ASRF 2021 will be posted on the ASRF website and in the Weekly Update.
