

ETSU to Test Emergency Notification Systems Thursday, Oct. 1

As part of its continued emphasis on campus safety, East Tennessee State University will test its emergency mass notification systems on Thursday, Oct. 1, at 9:35 a.m.

The system includes an outdoor warning siren system with five large speakers strategically placed on the main campus and on the VA campus, an emergency text messaging and email service, an alert message on the ETSU homepage and a public address system in select university buildings.

ETSU's outdoor siren system will sound at 9:35 a.m. Once it begins, the alert messaging and the PA system will be activated. The outdoor warning system will include a siren wail followed by the message, "Attention! This is a test of the ETSU Emergency Alert System. This is only a test." During this process, no action on behalf of ETSU students and employees is required.

ETSU's mass notification systems were installed in 2008. Students, faculty and staff may register for the alert service by downloading the ETSU Safe App, which is available for Apple and Android devices, and then texting "ETSU" to 237233 to receive the emergency text alerts.

For more information, contact Mason Bowen, ETSU Department of Public Safety, at 423-439-5233 or bowenmt@etsu.edu.

National Custodial Worker's Day Oct. 2

Oct. 2 is National Custodial Worker's Day. The ETSU Faculty Senate would like to encourage everyone in the ETSU community to take a moment to thank our custodial, grounds, and maintenance staff for the important work they do. These vital members of our ETSU community work tirelessly to ensure that our shared spaces, both indoor and outdoors, are clean, well-functioning, and aesthetically pleasing. Due to the threat that the current pandemic poses, their work is more important than ever. The Faculty Senate extends their appreciation to these employees for all they do to support ETSU's mission.

Rest and recharge: ETSU closed Oct. 5-6

ETSU will be closed Oct. 5-6. During that time, classes will not meet and offices will be closed. These administrative days are being provided as a way to express appreciation to the ETSU community for all they have done to sustain and support the university during this pandemic, particularly during the recent weeks as the campus prepared for the start of the fall 2020 semester.

- Students scheduled for clinical rotations on those days should attend.
- Students with scheduled educational activities in the community (e.g., student teaching, service learning hours, internships) should attend.
- Quillen College of Medicine students and Gatton College of Pharmacy students should continue with their current academic schedule as planned.
- Students with questions should contact their program coordinator.
- Faculty and staff who must work during that time (e.g., university employees working in the clinical environment or precepting students on clinical rotations) will be able to take the days off at a later time. That time must be used by Feb. 28, 2021.
- Employees should record an “L” on their timesheet for Oct. 5 and 6. Only employees who cannot take the days on Oct. 5 and 6 because of teaching/clinical responsibilities may use the days at a later time. Those employees should record an “L” on their timesheet when the days are used.

Please make sure that you observe proper safety precautions and practices at all times. This includes physical distancing and wearing a face covering.

New Process: Non-employee direct deposit authorization required via Dynamic Forms

Business and Finance has revised and enhanced the process of setting up non-employees for payment, which now requires direct deposit authorization, excluding foreign vendors and others that are not eligible for direct deposit. We ask for your patience and understanding as these improvements incorporate better security measures to safeguard confidential information and protect the University from ongoing fraudulent external threats. Following these guidelines will greatly increase the speed of this process and ultimately lead to timelier payments. We have provided a detailed guide to assist departments with the adoption of this new process:

Study Abroad update from Office of International Programs

The Office of International Programs is currently working with students interested in education abroad during Summer 2021 and later. Several ETSU faculty-led programs as well as other partnership programs are still being planned. The Office of International Programs, however, is carefully watching developments related to COVID-19 and travel advisories and restrictions as well as communicating this information to students interested in Education Abroad. There is no guarantee that education abroad programs will take place in Summer 2021, and International Programs will help ensure that no non-recoverable expenses are committed on behalf of ETSU students, faculty, or staff as we navigate the landscape of education abroad next summer and beyond.

Information about Summer 2021 programs can be found at www.etsu.edu/honors/international/studyabroad/. Any questions may be directed to Dr. Christopher Keller at kellercj@etsu.edu.

ETSU Global Year delayed

The “ETSU Global Year: South Korea” will be delayed one year and will take place in the 2022-23 academic year instead of 2021-22. The uncertainties surrounding COVID-19 will not allow the program to achieve its goals next year, so it will begin a year later in the hopes it can then reach its full potential as an effort toward greater comprehensive internationalization at ETSU. Updated information about the “ETSU Global Year: South Korea, 2022-23” will be released later this Fall 2020. Any questions may be directed to Dr. Christopher Keller at kellercj@etsu.edu.

21-day Antiracism Challenge for students

We invite you to participate in an ETSU 21 Day Antiracism Challenge Sept. 21 - Oct. 19.

In this student-specific challenge, we would like you to spend time examining yourself and everyday practices with an antiracist lens. Our hope is that you will take this opportunity to examine yourself, the history of racial justice in the state and the region, and consider ways you can be more inclusive.

Here’s how it will work:

Each day, you are asked to complete one task with an antiracist lens. At the end of each week, we’ll ask you to share a brief reflection (25 words) on your experiences in a one-question survey. Please feel free to post about your experiences on social media sites using the hashtag #ETSUAntiracistChallenge. On the 21st day of the challenge, Oct. 19 at noon, we’ll invite you to a 1-hour discussion so you can share your experiences with other students who have also been participating in the challenge.

Click here for more information. Let us know you are participating, by registering here.
