Violence, in its manifold forms, has been a persistent phenomenon in visual culture since the Stone Age. In this seminar, students will explore violence and its visual manifestations through a series of case studies drawn from diverse cultures and time periods. In so doing, students will develop critical interpretative approaches to the subject, considering the varying ways in which violence and art intersect, from artistic depictions of varying kinds of violence, to art as a form of violence and violence committed against art (iconoclasm). The course will culminate in the conception of an individual mock exhibition related to the general theme of violence or an original work of art in a medium (or mediums) of the student's choice and an expository essay to be created in direct response to a topic, issue, or idea encountered during the semester.

Archive and Artist is a graduate seminar that explores the dynamic relationship between artists and archives, examining how archival materials inform artistic practices and how artists, in turn, challenge, reinterpret, and create archives. Through theoretical readings, case studies of historical and contemporary archives and artists, and hands-on engagement with archival collections, students will critically analyze the role of archives in shaping memory, history, identity, knowledge, and power.

BIOL 1010-900 is an ONLINE course offered through the ETSU Biological Sciences Department and REQUIRES A PERMIT to register. Send permit requests along with your E# and course CRN to youngtl@etsu.edu. PLEASE BE SURE TO ALSO REGISTER FOR THE CORRESPONDING ONLINE LAB SECTION, BIOL 1011-900, CRN 84250, WHICH WILL ALSO REQUIRE A PERMIT.  Students will not be required to meet on campus or online at scheduled times. A distance learning laboratory kit is required, and it will be provided by your instructor at no extra charge. For minimum system computer requirements and additional information, please go here: https://www.etsu.edu/onlinehelp/student_help/tech_resources.php (you will need to copy/paste the link). Please be advised you will be responsible for watching/listening to lectures on D2L and completing assignments and assessments by the posted deadlines for each. You will be required to submit electronic photos of yourself performing the home-based lab exercises in order to receive full credit. Other requirements will be addressed by the instructor. Students wishing to attend a campus-based classroom section must enroll in a different section of BIOL 1010. Textbook required for the online BIOL1010 or BIOL1020 is different from the on-ground courses BIOL1010 or BIOL1020 courses. If you plan to use the same book, be advised to take both the courses as online or on-ground.

Presidents and Their Generals provides students the opportunity to examine one of the most essential aspects of our Republic – the civil-military relationship between an elected President and an appointed senior military officer. We will begin with a study of the principles of civil-military relations and then examine the specific relationships of Presidents with “their” Generals in twelve case studies ranging from George Washington to George W. Bush to study how early presidents established the principle of military subordination to civil government, and from the Civil War to World War II the president's role as commander-in-chief solidified, with an increasingly professionalized military offering its counsel. But following President Truman's experience with General MacArthur during the Korean War, subsequent presidents selected generals who would generally ally themselves with administration priorities. Students will analyze and reflect on how the relationship evolved and develop a theory of how it should continue to evolve to the benefit of the Republic. Students will conduct research and complete four written analyses of the civil-military relationships between Presidents and their Generals of their choosing.

Battles and Campaigns of the American Revolution provides students the opportunity to examine, understand, analyze and evaluate the theory and practice of 18th Century European warfare during the American Revolution, 1775-1783, by studying the operational context, doctrinal concepts, tactics, techniques, and procedures employed in ten key campaigns and battles. Students begin with an overview of the strategic environment and the political context for the military struggle. Students then receive an orientation to relative advantages and disadvantages of contemporary military organizations, tactics, equipment, technology, rank structures, and living conditions. Students then study and develop analysis tools based upon the Principles of War; use the tools to analyze and evaluate the conduct of the campaigns and battles; and use the results of the analysis to suggest lessons and improvements that would benefit future campaigns and battles of the American Revolution and/or have application to non-military endeavors. Finally, students conduct research and complete four written battle analyses on battles or campaigns of their choosing.

This is an asynchronous distance learning class. There are land surveying labs associated with this class. Students have the ability to come to campus at the regularly scheduled time for exams and to perform lab assignments, unless they identify and get approval for a mentor to proctor the exams and lab assignments off-campus. The mentor must be a licensed land surveyor that has access to industry standard land surveying equipment. Other requirements will be addressed by the professor. Contact the course instructor for questions or to make special arrangements.

This course offers an in-depth exploration of Black Feminist Thought, examining its intellectual roots, key frameworks, and how Black women have theorized their unique social positions. We will engage with foundational and contemporary thinkers who challenge traditional feminist paradigms and prioritize intersectionality in analyzing race, gender, class, and sexuality. The course will cover a range of Black feminist perspectives, including but not limited to Africana Womanism, Womanist theology, and other critical approaches to feminist thought from the African diaspora. Students will critically engage with seminal texts by authors such as bell hooks, Audre Lorde, Patricia Hill Collins, and Cleonora Hudson-Weems. These texts will be complemented by contemporary essays and case studies that reflect how Black feminism intersects with broader social justice movements, including struggles for racial justice, LGBTQ+ rights, and global liberation. Through lectures, discussions, and writing assignments, students will develop a nuanced understanding of the diverse theoretical frameworks that inform Black feminist thought and the implications of these ideas for activism and social change.
